VOYAGER 1976

FAIRFIELD JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL
2825 Fairfield Avenue
Fort Wayne, Indiana

Cover design by Cindy Cobbs

Administrators Lead, Guide

Mr. Charles Hoffman, principal at Fairfield Junior High, set the pace for our bicentennial year at school. Was there an inch of our school that didn't see him (and pass inspection) this year? We doubt it. At his desk, in conference with parents or teachers, visiting with the kids in the halls, or even practicing his set shot in the gym, he was the "main man" to lead, guide, and instruct.

Dr. Larry Johnson spent his first year at Fairfield in 1975-76. It only took him a few days to realize he was assigned to the best school in the whole city. His duties, as he described them, were "teacher, janitor, disciplinarian, and a few others too." A tall, friendly basketball fan, Dr. Johnson had no trouble fitting into the Fairfield setting of work, cooperation, and teaching by example.

Counselors And Secretaries¹⁹⁰⁴⁷⁹⁵

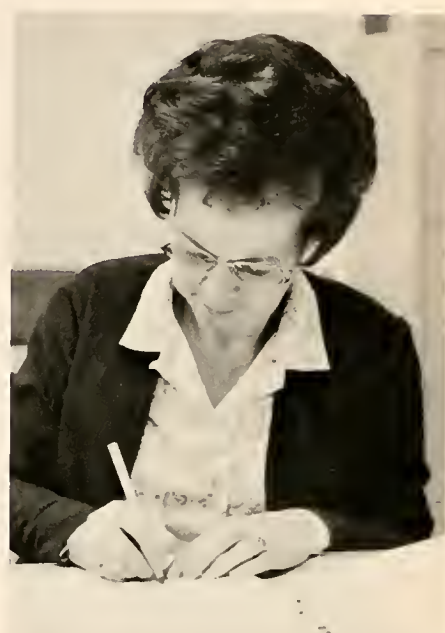

Mr. Andrews

Mrs. Stephens

"Good morning, Fairfield Junior High School!" Mrs. Harvill greets a great many people during 1975-'76.

Mrs. Lake (above) checks listings of lockers for Spartans in the fall of the year—one of her many duties.

Mr. Musi

Mrs. Harvill

Mrs. Lake

Mrs. Carboni

Got a problem? Need information, a class changed? A dollar changed? There just was no way to get through the year at Fairfield without knowing our counselors, office staff, and secretaries. Mr. Andrews, known in the fall as "The Candy Man," ran the candy sale. Mrs. Stephens sponsored student council. And who hasn't had some help from Mrs. Lake, Mrs. Harvill, Mrs. Carboni? School psychometrist Mrs. Steckler and school Nurse Mrs. Till (at right), and the ever-handsome counselor-aide, Mr. Musi (above) also made life easier for us.

We Led A "Spartan" Life ...

Even on the sidelines, the Fairfield students excelled.

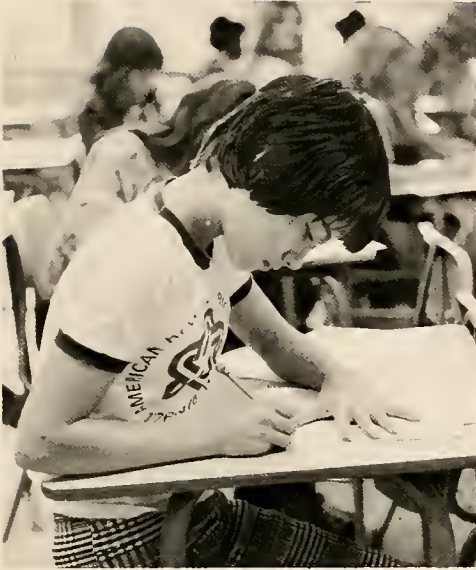

Although our track and field space was still small this year, gym classes used every inch. Mr. Fireoed above.

Through 1975-1976

Barbara Baker takes her studies seriously in this photo (above).

"Let's see, a little mustard here, Oops!" Caught by the Fairfield Camera, Sam Nunez hurries to his lunch.

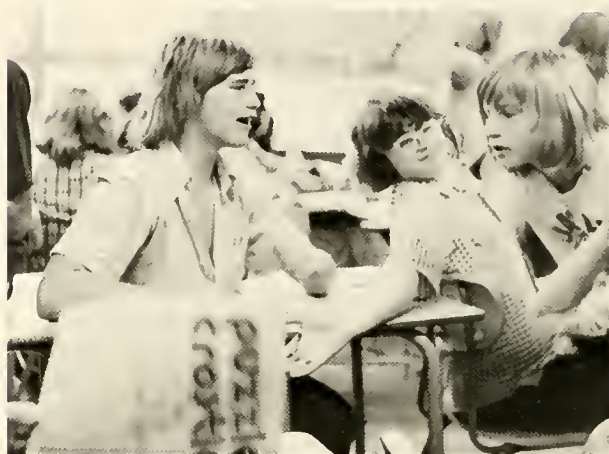

"I thought it was in here somewhere," Linda Ulery seems to say as she searches for the right pencil. Every day brought new challenges as the year went on (above).

Kathy Dills, Alison Hewett, Barbie Carroll, and Mike Willour work on a science bulletin board (below).

Almost caught by the Voyager camera! Beth Schilling and DeeAnn Lippitt are caught where they spend the most time at Fairfield—in class.

Robin Riemke, Voyager photographer, sits on the other side of the lens.

Judi Kennedy concentrates hard on a lesson—or is it a note?

Eighth grade lunch! Diane spots the photographer, while Dawn talks and Cindy and Cathy drink milk. Mmmmm!

Another group of Spartan students on this page shows the varied activities which took place at Fairfield in the bicentennial school year. Five members of the Voyager yearbook staff (right) sort name cards for this issue. As the year passed by, they and many more people not pictured here tried to give credit for the outstanding performances given at school. Athletics, studies, musical presentations, and just plain old "three R's" took up our time as we made gradual progress toward more advanced studies.

And Performers

Even the stairways were pressed into service (below) for special group work. Social Studies here.

Fairfielders compete as individuals in track and field events (above) and win their event.

Dean Eckert (above) hits the books.

Look Out, South Side!!

Work at Fairfield was partly aimed at getting us ready for the more demanding work at South Side High in the next three years. First, the academic work (left): Mr. Booker demonstrated many problems and solutions to his students. Also stressed was physical training: Joe Dennis, Ron Treesch, and Tony Schaasberg (above) show their muscles and poise in Mr. Fireoved's gym class outdoors.

Fairfield also provided many opportunities to make new friends and socialize. Josie Fisher (below left) and friends visit after taking tickets at the first of many basketball games of '75-'76.

The flag on Mrs. Stein's door (below right) was a daily reminder to her students that this was an extra special year—one of many things that we took along as we said "Look out, South Side, here we come!"

"You caught us!" That's what the surprised look on the faces of Tracey Weiss and Stacey Wemhoff seems to say as they work on this Voyager.

"Let's see now . . . C comes after B, and D after C. But what does E come after?" Andy Alatza puzzles over this as he works on Fairfield's yearbook.

Eighth Grade Glimpses

Beth Schilling, Fairfield eighth grader, uses the Scope magazine, popular with English classes.

Sue Jones demonstrates how to promptly follow teacher directions—"Clear off those desks!"

Samuel Nunez and Tina Himes hit the books in another study time—or are they posing?

Tina Stone models student council campaign buttons in the fall of our '75 school year.

Hi, Mrs. Pinkerton

Ever wondered how the school keeps track of about a thousand people in the course of the long school year? That's one of the jobs Mrs. Pinkerton has at Fairfield as attendance clerk. After absences, students see her for their admit slip to class. If they come in late, she corrects their attendance card, which becomes part of the permanent record.

In her role as study hall teacher, Mrs. Pinkerton also helps students succeed by providing a good atmosphere for difficult studies. Notice how neat that desktop is? That's a good example of the efficient way she handles her duties.

A good student's-eye view of life in class shown here. Drawings on the board, lectures, homework, special projects, grades, books, reading—and sometimes that pretty girl or handsome guy in the next row—were all a part of our school year at Fairfield.

An interesting question: which one of the girls above ate the school lunch? Besides the culinary delights, the Fairfield lunchroom provided a good place to socialize, relax, or maybe put the finishing touches on that one important assignment due in an afternoon class.

Part of the fun of being in Mrs. Long's class is working on group projects that have to do with reading. In some cases, even the halls make extra space. Pam Smith and Alicia Hamblin put their ideas together in a report outside of room 114.

Spartan Scientists

Mr. Beck
Miss Brosier
Mr. Bruns
Mr. Crum
Mr. Foellinger

Do Their Stuff

Science club studied many aspects of the world around us in 1975-76 (top of page). Andy Swihart and sponsor Mr. Foellinger are not pictured. Monte Moore (lower left) points to one of the many creatures seen in science study, this one on Mr. Oberley's bulletin board. Planets? Bacteria? Mrs. Broome (lower right) explains to her class. Experiments, demonstrations, note-taking, reading, tests, quizzes, science news . . . All were part of the curriculum taken at Fairfield during our courses this year.

Kathy Heller, ninth grader, listens while a neighbor's composition is read. Sharing helped in much of the language study in our year at school.

Speeches, writing, reading, book reports and lots of preparation for senior high grades made up the curriculum at Fairfield in 1975-76. Students above hit the books.

Mrs. Long displays one of the many projects from developmental reading classes.

Angles, Lines, Plus And Minus

Practical use of mathematics was emphasized at Fairfield. Students (above) used their skills in science; Mr. Ornelas (lower left) called on us; Tony Lupkin said "Boo!"

Teachers above: Mr. Bierbaum, Mr. Booker, Mrs. Egley, Mr. Erickson, Mrs. Kimmel, Mr. Ornelas, Mr. Rosinski.

Spartans showed a typical enthusiastic response (top of page) when Mr. Ornelas asked a question. The topic here was integers and positive and negative numbers; other units taught us basic computational skills and prepared us to go on to more advanced studies or practical uses.

Mr. Rosinski (above left) taught math this year; his hands demonstrate an angle here that is too fast for the Voyager camera to catch. Dennis McFeters (above at right) shows that he knows his subject before demonstrating a problem in room 115.

Spartans Flex Muscles

Health and gym teachers,

Social Studies Activities

Bus trip! Mr. Donlan took one group of students to Chicago in February. The students who accompanied Miss Butler to Washington were Mike Beighley, Tracey Weiss, Stacey Wemhoff, Julie Winger, Ron Bailey, Jay Winger, Teresa Blombach, Jenny Langhinrichs, DeeAnn Lippitt, Chris Moon, Gloria Gasnarez, Gwen Fields, Lynn Swager, Richard Birkhold, Teresa Trimble, Jeni Erickson, Kathy Birkhold. They show their enthusiasm (below).

General Anthony Wayne, the man Fort Wayne is named after, is portrayed in the statue above, which students saw at Valley Forge on the Washington trip. Social studies classes concentrated on many aspects of the revolutionary period in recognition of the bicentennial this year.

Fairfield's bulletin boards showed important work taking place in all subjects this year. Students read, studied, and used all types of materials during their study time and free periods in class (below left). Individual and small group study was also emphasized; students (below right) view a film strip in Miss Butler's social studies class.

Teresa, Paula, John, Judi, Gloria, Sam, and others are hard at work listening during a lecture in a history period.

Busy Calendar For 1976

Fairfield went through the North Central evaluation to renew its status as an accredited school. Miss Brosier tells how we do it at Fairfield (above).

Mrs. Williams and Mr. Bierbaum listen to announcements at a faculty meeting (above); Mrs. Carboni and Mrs. Lake answer phones.

Principal Charles Hoffman (above) listens to a committee report from the faculty.

Industrial Arts Classes

Volleyball Champs In '76

Spartan Cheerleaders

Students At Work ...

Running track, winning, losing, Project Pride, camera club, hard studies, all were Spartan jobs.

Mr. Oberley joined our staff this year, and gave special help whenever we needed it.

Teachers In Action

Varsity beats faculty! Mr. Erickson's foul shot was featured (above). Mr. Rosinski, Miss Butler, Mrs. Stein, Mr. Donlan and Mr. Hoffman all were caught in action (below).

Chess and checkers club, sponsored by Mr. Beck, (above) met weekly this year.

Teachers not pictured with their departments: Mr. Anderson, Mrs. Kariger, Mr. Mahon, Mrs. Pinkerton, And Mrs. Wright. All faculty members this year sponsored some outside student activity.

Ping-pong club (above), sponsored by Mr. Booker and Mr. Oberley, was one of the more popular clubs this year, meeting in the cafeteria every week.

Members of the Fairfield family are shown at left in some poses seen during '75-'76. A poem by Robbin Riemke sums up the feelings of many Spartans:

I am me.
 Accept me for that.
 I'm silly, maybe different
 from others;
 But
 I'm me.
 Some boys put on the act of
 Being strong and masculine.
 I don't;
 I'm me.
 Others put on the act of
 Being big and tough.
 I don't;
 I'm me.
 You must accept me for that.

Cheerblock And Y-Teens

Fairfield Custodians

Fairfield's janitorial staff members are devoted to their jobs, even though they sometimes have to work extra hard to clean up the mess that 900 students can make. On this page (clockwise, starting upper left), Mr. Shoemaker is caught outdoors supervising lawn care; Mrs. Schroeder poses, ready to fix a torn science bulletin board; a special crew plants a tree in our front yard, a gift to Fairfield from the graduating class; staff members Shomaker, Schroeder, Milledge; not pictured, custodian Mr. Smith.

Bicentennial Kitchen Staff

Eleanor Till, assistant director of the school food service, poses with Mrs. Marquart (center) and food service director Marsha Bragg.

Cathy Federspiel and Diana Dean (above) also wear special costumes for the October 15th special lunch served at Fairfield in '75-76.
